The vibrancy of working on the campus of a major university is infectious. When the early fall appears, and students return to campus, don't you get just a little jealous? Don't you start thinking “I wish I was going back to school?”

If this is you, you are in luck! One of the major benefits of being an employee of the University of Utah is the 50% tuition reduction for eligible employees. But the tuition reduction benefit doesn't stop with you... it also applies to your family, making this benefit truly amazing!

To qualify for the discount, you must be employed in a full-time position (75% FTE or greater).

Tuition reduction is available:

- For you after you have worked for the University in a full-time benefit-eligible position for 6 consecutive months.

- For your spouse after you have worked in a full-time benefit-eligible position for 1 consecutive year; and

- For your eligible dependent children after you have worked in a full-time benefit-eligible position for 3 consecutive years. (Eligible dependent children are unmarried, under age 26, and dependent on you for at least 50% of their support).

The waiting period starts on first day of work in an eligible position. You must complete the waiting period as of the first day of the semester. Tuition reduction does not include things like special fees, lab fees, or text books.

If you are an eligible employee, you may apply for tuition reduction benefits by completing an Application for Reduced Tuition and submitting it to the Benefits Department prior to the first day of the semester.

If the application is not received and processed before the day tuition is due and tuition is not paid, all classes may be dropped. The student may re-enroll after tuition has been paid, but may not get in if the class is full.
